EMS: good business sense

Implementing an Environmental Management System for your organisation really does make good business sense. You have the potential to save thousands each year with a programme that promotes waste reduction and reduces your environmental 'footprint'.

Businesses who display environmental accreditations are differentiating themselves from the competition. Many we've worked with are enjoying an increase in customer loyalty and market share as a result of their accreditations and environmental commitment.

You can:

- Gain and maintain environmental accreditation
- Save money and increase product sales
- Ensure you comply with current environmental laws

"The SHE Solutions team have been instrumental in our success in workplace health and safety. Thanks to them, we've never been more 'healthy'- saving thousands annually in ACC levies, we have less accidents and sick leave than we've ever had before - and enjoying an increase in staff awareness and involvement. I thoroughly recommend SHE Solutions to any employer who wants to transform or implement a new H&S programme - it's certainly worked wonders for us."
